

Is free solar power real

Are 'free' solar panels a good idea?

Companies often offer "free" solar panels through leases or power purchase agreements (PPAs), where they install and maintain the panels at no upfront cost. "Free" solar panels can result in initial savings on your energy bills, but in the long run, the savings may not be as significant as owning your solar panels outright.

Can you get free solar panels from the government?

One of the most common scams are ads showing "How to get free solar panels from the government." While there are government incentives for solar panels, there are only a few extremely niche programs that can entirely cover the cost of going solar, such as California's Low-Income Weatherization Program (LIWP).

Are "free" solar panels a scam?

However, it's important to note that "free" solar panels are not always a scam, but they do require careful consideration. These "free" solar panels are typically offered through solar panel leases or power purchase agreements (PPAs), which allow individuals to install solar panels without the high expense.

What is a free solar panel offer?

A "free solar panel" offer doesn't mean you will get solar panels for free. Instead, this usually refers to an agreement that allows you to start using solar panels without incurring upfront costs. However, you will have to make payments in the future.

Are free solar panels a lie?

While the word "free" implies there are no associated costs, this is not usually the case with free solar panel offers. "I have never seen an advertisement offering free solar that is not a lie," said Neil Gallagher of Brighterway Solar, a solar installation company in Florida.
