How do I file a lawsuit against a solar energy company?

This can include documents such as your solar energy contract, photographs of any damage, correspondence with the solar company, and any other relevant information. While you may be able to handle a small claim on your own, it's generally advisable to hire a lawyer who specializes in solar energy litigation.

What happens if a solar company fails to deliver a warranty?

If your solar company fails to fulfill their obligations as outlined in the contract, such as delivering the agreed-upon system or providing the promised warranties, you may have grounds for a breach of contract lawsuit. Did your solar company make false statements or misrepresentations during the sales process?

Should I lease or buy a home with a solar energy company?

Finding somebody to purchase your home in addition to finishing your lease agreement with a solar energy company may not be the best decision. Leasing vs. Ownership: If a residential solar energy company does not provide leasing, purchasing solar panels upfront, or even taking out an additional loan could be very costly.

What happens if a solar company is liable?

Here are a few potential outcomes: If the court determines that your solar company is indeed liable for the issues you've experienced, they may award you compensation to cover the costs of any damages you've incurred. This can include repair costs, property damage, and any financial losses resulting from the solar installation.

What happens if you sell solar panels to a company?

Often companies involved in selling solar panels to consumers don't treat their customers properly. Sometimes they damage people's roofs while they're installing the panels. Sometimes they sell the entire residential solar system to a company you've never heard of - and that company starts abusing the consumer.

Can I sue a solar company for misrepresentation?

If so, you may be able to sue them for misrepresentation or fraud. This can include exaggerating the energy savings or making false promises about system performance. In some cases, the installation of a solar system can cause damage to your property.
